

Glendale Hires Sheldon Rox as their Police Officer

Contributed By Walter W. Cordes | Village of Glendale, Municipal Offices

The Village of Glendale has made some changes in their lineup with the recent retirement of Chief Matt Fruchey. Lt. Warman was promoted to Police Chief and Patrolman David LeCompte was then promoted to Lieutenant. That left one opening for a full time police officer.

After taking his Oath of Office, Officer Sheldon Rox receives his Police badge from Mayor Joseph Hubbard with Chief Warman looking on in the background

Sheldon Rox was hired this week to bring the department back up to its normal staff of 7 full-time officers. Sheldon, husband of Aimee (Buck) Rox and father of 4, Leslie, Hunter, Evonnyia and Amber, is no stranger to Glendale. Sheldon joined the Glendale Police Department three years ago as a part-time officer, having served 8 years with the Lawrenceburg Police Department. Other experience includes being a field supervisor for the Kentucky Commission On Human Rights as the Northern Kentucky Field Supervisor and then as manager of their Research and Information Unit. Officer Rox has also been a staff instructor at the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy in Plainsfield, Indiana and is a graduate of the Police Executive Leadership Academy, Rural Policing Institute and earned the status of Master Instructor.

Officer Rox said, "My family and I are very happy that I was selected to serve as Glendale's next full-time officer. It is an honor to work with a great group of officers in one of the most wonderful places in Ohio."